Today's gospel reading from John 15:1-8

Jesus said to his disciples: "I am the true vine, and my Father is the vine grower. He takes away every branch in me that does not bear fruit, and everyone that does he prunes so that it bears more fruit. You are already pruned because of the word that I spoke to you. Remain in me, as I remain in you. Just as a branch cannot bear fruit on its own unless it remains on the vine, so neither can you unless you remain in me. I am the vine, you are the branches. Whoever remains in me and I in him will bear much fruit, because without me you can do nothing. Anyone who does not remain in me will be thrown out like a branch and wither; people will gather them and throw them into a fire and they will be burned. If you remain in me and my words remain in you, ask for whatever you want and it will be done for you. By this is my Father glorified, that you bear much fruit and become my disciples."

Dear Parents, Teachers and Students,

MADD Night

A spectacular evening showcasing our extraordinary students was held last Friday at the school's 6th Annual Music, Art, Dance and Drama (MADD) night. I was so proud of the students and their incredible talents. Their confidence was overflowing! As well, it was a fun, entertaining family night with some quite emotional moments. My thanks to Michael Green for being Master of Ceremonies as well as Jane Edwards and Margaret Hanson for preparing the students so well. We are very blessed to have them as part of our community as specialist music tutors. Thank you to all students who auditioned and 'had a go'. This year, every student who auditioned, made it through to MADD night. Thank you to the students who willingly displayed their artwork and Mrs Broers who organised the display. Thank you to Tara Cassidy for organising the front of house and to the teachers who mentored particular groups of students. Thank you Darryl Edwards for assisting backstage and Trish O'Dell for coordinating the supper and ensuring clean up. I would also like to thank the parents for their support in providing supper and encouraging their children to participate. It was a wonderful world at our school last Friday evening! All monies collected at the door, $400, will be donated to Caritas Australia's Nepal Earthquake Appeal. Thank you for your generosity.

We love our winter uniform!

Now that we have changed over to the winter school uniform, it would be very much appreciated if students could come to school in the correct uniform each day. If there are any uniform variations, please write a short note of explanation to your child's class teacher. Wearing the uniform well, says much about our school and who we are as a community and what we value. Students may only wear navy or white coloured ribbons or bands in their hair and any hair which is shoulder length or longer, should be tied up.

School Photos

School photos are next Monday 11 May, so it would be lovely if all uniform matters could be addressed by this date. You should have already received photo envelopes with family photo envelopes available from the front office.

National Assessment Program for Literacy and Numeracy

Year 3 and 5 students complete the NAPLAN tests next week which run from Tuesday to Thursday. Best wishes to each of our students as they prepare for these tests.

Mothers Day Prayer Service

Just a reminder that there will be a prayer service this Friday to give thanks for our mums, grandmothers and significant women in our lives. All parents are very warmly invited to attend at 8.55am.

God bless

'Educating for TODAY and TOMORROW'

NSW education audit: staged learning, composite classes are the new classroom

One-in-three public primary school students in NSW are taught in a composite class, with Catholic schools increasingly abandoning single year classes in favour of group learning.

A new class audit by the NSW Department of Education reveals that last year, 160,734 primary students from 1616 schools were in a composite class and while some schools had none, others had as many as 12 composite classes.

The audit shows there were 6586 composite classes in 2014. The department says composite or multi-age classes are used if there is an "uneven pattern of enrolment" in the school, if the school is small or if mixing students of different ages would be academically and socially beneficial.

It stresses that research shows "it makes no difference to performance whether students are in a straight year group or in a multi-age class – it's the teacher who makes the difference".

A leading researcher in composite classes, Linley Cornish, said when done well, multi-age classes produced students who were "self assured and independent learners".

"A lot of parents worry about the academic side of composite classes but there are a lot of social benefits of these classes," Associate Professor Cornish, chair of teaching and learning at the University of New England, said.

"They are a lot more like real life because you have different ages and abilities working together."

She said teachers no longer taught "rigidly in one year" and because the NSW syllabus stretches over two years, known as a stage, composite classes often worked very well.

"The times when I have seen it not work well is when a principal puts very bright younger kids with slower older kids and what happens is the younger kids overtake the older ones and that causes all sorts of problems," Dr Cornish said.

Multi-age classes are not unique to public schools and in some Catholic schools, the traditional classroom structure has been replaced with staged learning, where students are grouped by the stage they have reached not their age.

At St Monica's Primary School in North Parramatta, the classroom is a thing of the past. Instead, all the school's 200 students are together in one large open space, with mini libraries and quiet reading areas dividing the room.

The school's principal, Louise O'Donnell, said staged learning meant students in two grades, such as year 3 and 4, learnt together in one space with two teachers, ensuring learning could be tailored to each student's needs.

"The students are learning over two years, teachers are working in collaboration and it gives children a voice in their learning so what we find is that the students are engaged and they are excited about learning," Miss O'Donnell said.

Year 6 student Salama Kunambi and her classmate year 5 student, Lachlan Roberts say they make a great team when it comes to projects. They are in stage 3 and each term they all work together on a major project.

This term they are designing their own political party.

"This way you can work with people you have never worked with and you don't just work with your friends," Salama, 11, said.

In the Parramatta diocese, about 1000 students in 11 of its primary schools are in staged classes while in the Sydney diocese, which has 113 primary schools, 30 schools have one or more multi-age class. The most common is a combined year 5 and 6 class.

The executive director of Catholic schools in the Archdiocese of Sydney, Dan White, said parents were often nervous about the idea of multi-age classrooms because they did not understand them.

"Which ever way we group the children, it is always about the learning and we know we need to explain this to the parents," Dr White said.

"But multi-age classes can be very effective, and although we tend to avoid it in kindergarten, what we find is that they allow for more flexible grouping of children."

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Our 2015 school theme is "Peace be with you!" As the Father sent me, so I am sending you." These inspirational words encourage us to extend Christ's peace to others through our actions in our everyday lives.

PRAYER GUIDE

It is becoming increasingly clear that our Pope Francis is a man of his people, and a father who communicates to his people in a fashion that they seem to like.

More evidence of this is a means to prayer that the Holy Father authored when he was still the Archbishop in Argentina. It is a lovely way to pray, and it showcases Pope Francis' sense of simplicity, his priority for family, his love for the poor and also his recognition that prayer is powerful.

You may already know the prayer: Pope Francis' five finger prayer guide.

1. The thumb is the closest finger to you. So start praying for those who are closest to you. They are the persons easiest to remember. To pray for our dear ones is a "sweet obligation."
2. The next finger is the index. Pray for those who teach you, instruct you and heal you. They need the support and wisdom to show direction to others. Always keep them in your prayers.
3. The following finger is the tallest. It reminds us of our leaders, the governors and those who have authority. They need God's guidance.
4. The fourth finger is the ring finger. Even that it may surprise you, it is our weakest finger. It should remind us to pray for the weakest, the sick or those plagued by problems. They need your prayers.
5. And finally we have our smallest finger, the smallest of all. Your pinkie should remind you to pray for yourself. When you are done praying for the other four groups, you will be able to see your own needs but in the proper perspective, and also you will be able to pray for your own needs in a better way.
